SAIC is leveraging AI capabilities to enhance operations

RESTON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 30, 2024-- Science Applications International Corp. (NASDAQ: SAIC) today announced the launch of Tenjin GPT, a new internal, generative Artificial Intelligence (AI) resource available to employees that harnesses cutting-edge AI capabilities to automate and optimize business processes.

“Tenjin GPT is just one example of how SAIC is pushing the limits of technological innovation to provide employees with real-time insights and data analysis, as well as enhancing creativity and collaboration across our enterprise,” said Nathan Rogers, senior vice president and chief information officer at SAIC. “SAIC is accelerating the adoption and use of AI while also adhering to ethical AI governance values enforced by SAIC’s AI Council.”

Tenjin GPT, the latest feature of SAIC’s data science platform Tenjin, leverages the power of OpenAI’s GPT, which is the latest advancement in natural language processing. This state-of-the-art AI model enables users to develop highly sophisticated applications, automate repetitive tasks, streamline processes and gain valuable insights from vast amounts of data.

“By embracing generative AI technologies, SAIC is empowering our employees to upskill and improve productivity, while also reducing mundane tasks,” said Andy Henson, senior vice president of Digital Innovation at SAIC. “We help our customers harness data and AI to meet their mission needs every day, so it’s only natural for our employees to embrace this technology.”

Currently Tenjin GPT is being used internally at SAIC for summarizations of information, code generation, translation, research, content generation, and more, but it can also be integrated into customers’ existing infrastructure. Powered through Microsoft’s Azure AI, the robust framework ensures seamless integration and scalability. Additionally, Tenjin GPT aligns with SAIC’s and Microsoft Azure’s strong commitment to securing sensitive data, which is especially crucial for government teams.
