SAIC Launches Multi-Year Growth Strategy at 2024 Investor Day

April 11, 2024

Company to focus on strategic pivots and innovation investments to accelerate profitable organic growth

RESTON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Science Applications International Corp. (NASDAQ: SAIC) met with key analysts and shareholders today to share the company’s new vision for strategic growth to increase its value for customers and stakeholders.

"Today is about connecting our people and our customers in a critical way to modernize and innovate now so that we may advance customer missions into the future," said Toni Townes-Whitley, chief executive officer at SAIC. "At SAIC, we integrate leading-edge technologies to ensure mission critical work gets done. This alignment to our customers' greatest needs gives us the direction to bring value and grow organically while serving and protecting our world."

SAIC has committed to growing the company through a phased approach that focuses on building the company’s portfolio and go-to-market approach, enhancing the brand and further developing a winning culture.

In Feb. 2024, SAIC reorganized into five distinct business groups aligned with company customers - Army; Navy; Air Force and Combatant Commands; Space and Intelligence; and Civilian. The civilian group encompasses the civilian, health and state and local businesses. The recent addition of Srini Attili, executive vice president for the Civilian Business Group, completes SAIC’s leadership team.

In addition to Investor Day, SAIC leadership rang the closing bell at The Nasdaq Stock Market site in New York City today to officially recognize SAIC’s stock exchange listing transition to The Nasdaq while retaining the SAIC ticker symbol.
