

SAIC Awarded $375 Million U.S. Navy Contract for Modern Vehicle Fielding Integration and Support

January 9, 2024

Company to provide C4ISR integration and fielding of tactical vehicles

RESTON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- The U.S. Navy has awarded Science Applications International Corp. (NYSE: SAIC) a $375 million contract to continue providing Command, Control, Communications, Computers (C4) Intelligence, Surveillance and Reconnaissance (ISR) fielding and integration on land-based vehicle platforms to support Naval Information Warfare Center Atlantic (NIWC Atlantic).

"SAIC is proud to continue supporting this important mission," said Barbara Supplee, senior vice president, Navy Business Group at SAIC. "Fielding tactical vehicles that have C4ISR components properly installed is critical to the success of the warfighter. Our team of experienced engineers, logisticians and technicians is honored to enable the Naval Information Warfare Center Atlantic as it pursues this vital work."

Under the five-year contract, SAIC will support NIWC Atlantic with production-engineering, integration, installation, logistical and programmatic support required to enable C4ISR fielding and integration on numerous land-based vehicle platforms across multiple Department of Defense services at both continental U.S. and overseas locations.

SAIC has invested in its Charleston facilities to enable the execution of vehicle fielding integration and support missions.
